Here is Why...*

Recruitment

Only the most qualified candidates wear the SMI uniform. All prospective security personnel must submit to an extensive criminal background check and pass a 5-panel drug screen, as well as a check for alcohol use.

Upon successful completion of the background check and drug screen, all applicants attend a pre-employment assessment. It is at the pre-employment assessment that SMI management selects the applicants that exhibit the qualities and experience necessary to become a member of the SMI security team.

Training

All SMI security officers are enrolled at the First Responders Academy, an affiliate of Lewis University. The training on emergency and disaster evacuation, terrorist awareness, preparedness and response to terror threats includes classroom presentations, lectures, role playing, expert seminars and mock situational exercises and on-site training. Security officers are trained and prepared to safely and efficiently secure various types of facilities, their employees and visitors.

To enhance the officer's ability to perform at a high level of confidence, a strong focus on attention to detail and personal appearance standards, along with public interaction and customer service are provided. Continuing education and training is also available and provided to SMI security personnel as required.

Supervision

SMI has, at its core, a management team with extensive backgrounds in physical security, investigations, law enforcement, military operations, disaster and emergency management, HAZMAT, criminal prosecutions, classroom and situational training, quality assurance and customer service.

On-site SMI management personnel work to ensure security personnel receive the guidance and direction they require, especially during the unlikely event of an emergency.

Personalized Client Service and Response

SMI is committed to offering its clients qualified, highly trained security officers and quality management personnel. We provide our customers with personalized customer service by developing a customized program to address their specific needs. Our management team's dedication to personalized customer service is what makes SMI the chief expert in the security industry.
